A revival of "Mme. Sans Gene" was given at Palmer's Theatre last night, Katharyn Kidder and Augustus Cook appearing in the roles which have made them famous. The scenic accessories were, if possible, better than ever, and the costumes magnificent. Wallace Shaw, Charles Plunkeft, Carroll Fleming, Dors Goldthwalte and Robert Dronet did excellent work, and the performance senjoyable in every respect.

If Silverstine Hadn't Smoked He Wouldn't Be in the Hospital To-day.

He had nearly finished working on his coat when he was selzed with the desire for a cigarette. He seemed to be in complete ignorance that benzine had any other than deansing properties. He struck a match. Instantly there was an explosion and Sliverstine stuggered back from the table half stunned by the shock. Before he could realize what had happened a sheet of fame burst from the coat, which had been liberally sprinkled with benzine. Some of the liquid had fallen on the clothes he wore. As this blazed up he shouted for help, and his children, who were in an adjoining room, ran into the hall screaming and arousing the neighbors.

In a desperate attempt to extinguish the flames Silverstine seized the cloth covering of a haireloth lounge beside him and attempted to beat out the blaze. This only made matters worse, for the cloth aught fire and, blazing up, burned his hands. Calling wildly for help, Silverstine then ran out into the hall, where he was met by Mrs. Fannie Yum, who occupies a flat on the same floor.

The poor man in his agony threw bimself upon the stone floor of the hall and tried to teat the burning clothes from his body. Mrs. Yum bravely helped him.

In the meantime Charles Pullnee, who has a flat on the second floor, ran up the stairs. He found nearly all the furniture in the front room on fire. Turning on a hydraut in the kitchen he selzed a pall and with a few buckets of water quenched the flames.

An alarm of fire had been turned in, and by this time the engines were arriving. Silverstine's home is next to Grammar School No. 88, which is on Rivington street. The school building was filled with children at the time, but the coolness of the teachers prevented any panic.
